

MARK STEPHENS

Mark Stephens was admitted as a Solicitor of the Supreme Court in England and Wales in July 1982 following a period of study of European Community Law under a scholarship to the Vrije University in Brussels.

Mark has practised before every level of Court in England and Wales and has also practised abroad and before international tribunals and courts. He is also a qualified mediator.

He was accepted by the High Court in London as an expert in International Law in the case of Bilgen -v- Bilgen where his evidence was preferred following exchange of reports and the giving of live evidence.

He was also accepted by the Californian court as an expert on English copyright law and legal aid in a copyright case arising out of allegations of infringement by the film "The Full Monty" and has recently given evidence to the Californian courts on English law relating to Nazi looted art (a Van Gogh in the possession of Elizabeth Taylor); Mark has also been accepted as an expert on English libel law and given expert evidence in the US 2nd Circuit.

Mark regularly undertakes libel, newsgathering, reporting restrictions, media and anti-counterfeiting work; he has advised clients on taking and defending copyright tribunal cases; Comparative work and advice for multinationals and cross jurisdictional media law and regulation, IP rights; Moral Rights cases and advice including the first in the UK (for Deanna Petherbridge). Mark has a deep interest and commitment to fundamental human rights and regularly practises before the European Court of Human Rights - principally on freedom of expression issues.

Mark is regularly called upon to advise at the interfaces between creators / the creative industries. Much of his Court work is now Appellate including the Privy Council.

Mark regularly writes, talks and lectures on media, arts and Human Rights. He was a Sky television news legal commentator and is a regular contributor to other television and radio programmes including the Radio 4 quiz show "Points of Law" which ran for 8 series', He is currently a contributor to "The Last Word".

Mark has been asked to give script advice on a number of television and radio programmes.

Mark was rendered into a Spitting Image puppet. He is a Freeman of the City of London and in his spare time is married to Donna and father of three daughters!
